

Nature and LOA

LOA stands for LIGHT OF ARCHE. In Greek, Arche means “origin,” “beginning,” or the ultimate “underlying substance of the world.” It also refers to water, the wellspring of life. Thus LIGHT OF ARCHE (LOA) means “Light from the source – energy.”

LOA products gently take in that universal light and energy found in all things, responding both directly and indirectly to the various elements in the natural world. LOA is designed as a tool to improve the individual and environment, letting us live in tune with nature and achieve a society based on love, harmony, and respect.

Our roots are found in the cosmos and Mother Nature, but another familiar source is the powers of the Gods. Why do people turn to Gods and Buddhas for support? It's because we believe our calls will be answered, and something fundamental will come down to people everywhere. This universal energy exists in the world (and cosmos) and is ever-present. In the midst of this wide world so overflowing with universal consciousness and energy, LOA is another fundamental force: the infinite power of light, found everywhere and in all things. It is without form and a constant presence, never altered by its surroundings. Though minute and invisible to the naked eye, it boasts a range of latent powers.

This universal energy is believed to be faster than the speed of light itself, making it immeasurable. On the other hand, its presence is uneven, found in different levels depending on the source, so it is never constant: you could say that this energy has no speed to begin with.

“A bit of science distances one from God, but much science nears one to Him.” (Louis Pasteur)

The cosmos are packed with the energy to produce all things, the warmth and love to grow and raise them, as well as untold other possibilities. That love is found deep within all things: in the wind, in objects, and in energy. The source of wisdom is love. Existence itself is love. When love penetrates the cosmos, comes back again, and spreads everywhere, harmony is achieved. Wisdom is a special and exceptional kind of intelligence – it's energy and power. And it contains an all-present power to create every possibility imaginable.

Whatever the material or technology, without loving thoughts the universe can not renew and work under creative principles

All things have a soul. The key is linking physical science with the science of the soul. Omnipresent love and the material should never be separated – they are one and the same. Love is the creative power behind every dimension: it is a core wisdom that breathes life into the soul and gives things form. Relying solely on a scientific understanding of the physical world will cause us to lose sight of nature's true form. Things in the physical world have a soul – a pure, latent consciousness and an inner love. As humans, we live in the three-dimensional world, but the explicit consciousness we have here is only one small part of the vast, ever-present consciousness that permeates everything.

Each and every thing in the world has its own special kind of radiant energy. But that energy can improve or worsen based on the environment surrounding it. Radiant energy describes the quality, substance, and function of things. Basic radiant energy is the standard living beings (plants, animals, and microbes) need to carry out healthy life processes, healthy growth, and display their full potential as healthy members of their species (for instance, a tomato displaying its full potential as a tomato, like those we used to enjoy: that distinctive sheen, aroma, and nostalgic taste).

Energy types

- 1 Physical and chemical energy: kinetic energy, potential energy, thermal energy
- 2 Energy affecting the quality, substance, and function of a material: environmental energy (LOA)

Environmental energy is a comprehensive expression of the energy produced when living things engage in activity, as well as the highs and lows of that underlying wave motion.

This value is set, used, and determined by considering how much radiant energy a thing releases compared to the level for a typical member of its species.

Hereinafter, this energy is called Kankyo energy or LOA .

Nature is just as it seems. As its power is to be a natural generator and inducer, it is the nature of thing(s). Their nature. Their essence.

The environment surrounds humans and organisms, they have a reciprocal influence on each other as the outside world.

There is a natural environment and a social environment.

To be healthy is to have no bad parts on the body, and to have a healthy body and mind.

※ In the case of wild mammals, the growth period is about 7 times that of healthy humans.

• A healthy fully grown human = growth phase of (18) years x (7) = 126 years.

Disease is caused by an abnormal biological state to all or part of the organism, in which normal functions are not performed, or in which various kinds of pain are suffered.

※ Although in medicine there are tens of thousands of chronic and degenerative diseases, there are only a few in the wild mammal world.

We consider nature, the environment, and health to be a cycle of the following: peace of mind < health < food < the earth < the environment < nature. Each of those points relies on a certain threshold from the other: in other words, the standard of health for humans is food (plants), which in turn require a standard of environment (the soil), and so forth. Each step in the cycle relies on the next.

Putting LOA into that environmental chain lets things, both visible and invisible, achieve symbiosis, harmony, and reduced entropy. They are then activated (stimulating their vital functions) and restored. Our bodies contain an unprecedented amount of latent power (wisdom). LOA continuously stimulates those inner powers, leading to improved environmental and health effects.

Can be seen by the human eye = can be believed...?

Can't be seen by the human eye = can't be believed...?

©Harmony, symbiosis, and coexistence

For instance, when most of us get the flu, we go to the doctor and get a shot or take medicine. We expect those methods to make us better, but unfortunately the virus doesn't go away. That's because a virus is neither living nor inanimate. A virus is a mysterious existence that sits between those two extremes. Therefore a virus can't be killed with medicine alone. When the body temperature is 37 degrees Celsius, a virus become active, and when it exceeds 38 degrees, it stops moving. That's why when the flu virus enters the body, the first thing the body does is heat up: it creates a fever from 38 to 40 degrees Celsius to stop the virus in its tracks, expelling it through sweat and urine. This phenomenon is one example of the body's latent powers (wisdom) making themselves present.

When we're born, we come into being alongside our very own “attending physician.” That “internal doctor” is a super system that controls our immune responses, natural healing processes, and body's self-activation. Health and illness are not conditions on two extremes: because we're alive, we experience continuously changing conditions like sickness and health. The key is curing illnesses when they occur through the body's own internal apparatus. Doctors and medicine won't cure illness: our own strength (energy) cures illness. (*This does not mean, of course, that doctors and medicine are unnecessary.)

LOA causes energy in the environment to increase, stimulating active microorganisms in humans, plants, and animals. This blocks germs that cause diseases in humans. As ambient energy increases and germs are suppressed, they slow down and stop being harmful. In other words, stimulating the body's active microorganisms causes harmful germs to come to a standstill.

This effect is part of the phenomenon where all living beings coexist in harmony and unison.

Ancient man felt a fear and terror for nature. Nature is something which cannot be seen in a world of truth and science. There is a gentle melody which flows through nature and the universe.

©A diversity of balance, where all things coexist in harmony (achieving a mean)

LOA restores a proper balance (a mean state) in the things we use unconsciously everyday: water, air, earth, electricity, fossil fuels, minerals, and more. It causes their internal functions and performance to change for the better – rather than too much or too little of a core component, LOA restores a harmonious balance of elements in those substances, returning them to their best state.

LOA (LIGHT OF ARCHE) products leverage environmental energy to draw out the natural features and powers of substances around us (both organic and inorganic). LOA's strength is that it enhances all things – animals, plants, and microscopic substances – everywhere. It can be used by men, women, the young and old alike, and in any profession, industry, or line of work. Its powers are universal.

LOA promotes vital harmony: it doesn't reject or exclude others and opposites.

All things great and small have an innate consciousness and role to play.

But sometimes the place, position, or thought process of different people and entities causes them to go astray, lose their objective, and ultimately become imbalanced. The result is a range of problems we see every day.

That's why LOA is here to promote balance and solve those problems.

Even if you have a negative attitude or reduced sensitivity or emotion, or if you have a bad attitude, LOA promotes healthy benefits across the board. Further, LOA does not require complex training or knowledge to use. That's because our own bodies contain an astonishing amount of natural wisdom (latent power) – LOA activates that power and helps your body use Kankyo energy to soothe all manner of spiritual, emotional, sensory, and physical problems.

©Kankyo energy and its use

Another amazing benefit of drawing on this fundamental, ever-present energy is that it doesn't produce the harmful side effects we worry about with man-made cures. Core energy has only one trajectory – restoring all things to natural harmony.

LOA produces dramatic results in an astonishingly short time: neutralizing (detoxifying) effects and harmonizing (therapeutic) effects that will surprise you with their efficacy. And as mentioned, there are no negative pitfalls like harmful side effects.

LOA products draw forth Kankyo energy and bring it into our everyday dimension (the 3rd dimension). Like antennas, they convert and expand that energy, “tuning” it and tweaking the “volume” to broadcast it far and wide. By choosing an LOA product matched to your needs, you can lead the elements around you (organic and inorganic, with and without form) to a perfect state of harmony and diverse balance. The result is restoring both you and your environment to a natural healthy, sound, and stable state. “Anshin no Tane” (the seed of peace) exists for this very reason.

©Why we developed LOA products

- Taking a firm look at the spiritual and environmental problems society and our planet face, we offer LOA as a much-needed remedy.
- We want to revitalize our resources (our planets, our souls) and protect them for our children and future generations.
